Item 4: Advisory Business

Firm Description

Clear Rock Advisors, LLC, a Texas limited liability company and private investment advisory firm (“we,” “us,” “our” or “Clear Rock Advisors”), was founded in December 2015. We provide investment advisory services to various separately managed accounts with respect to investment in securities and other financial instruments. We generally expect to have full discretionary authority with respect to investment decisions, and our investment advice will be provided in accordance with the investment objectives, guidelines and restrictions of each client, as set forth in the applicable investment management agreements and/or account documents. The information in this brochure is qualified in its entirety by the information set forth in such documents.

Principal Owners

Charles F. Hall, Jr., William T. Sanders, and Royce W. Medlin are our sole members and equity owners.

Types of Advisory Services

We provide discretionary investment advisory services to separately managed accounts of various clients with respect to investments in securities, financial instruments and/or other assets. These advisory services include the formulation and implementation of a strategic financial plan specific to each client, followed by the implementation of such plan using researched product offerings over a variety of investable asset classes. In addition to these investment advisory services, we also provide consulting services that include, among others, the review and analysis of external investments and the formulation of various implementation options through our extensive network of professional service providers. Whether it be formulation, implementation, or consulting services, we tailor our investment solutions to meet the specific needs and goals of each client.

On occasion, we recommend an investment product that will require a client signature for purchase. For example, for those clients that meet the necessary qualification thresholds, we have recommended investment in certain third-party private offerings.

Clear Rock Advisors also provides sub-advised investment management services to unaffiliated registered investment advisers.

Client accounts will be managed in accordance with the investment objectives, strategies, guidelines, restrictions, and limitations set forth in the investment management agreement and/or other applicable account documents. See Item 8 below.

Investment Restrictions

We will tailor our investment advisory services to the individual needs, desires, and financial objective(s) of each client. Clients generally may impose reasonable restrictions and/or limitations on our investment advisory or consulting services, including, but not limited to, restrictions on the types of securities purchased, position limits, net exposure limits and leverage limits.

Assets under Management

As of December 31, 2021, we have $388,734,152 in discretionary assets under management and $0 in non-discretionary assets under management.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

Description of Compensation and Fee Schedule

In consideration of our services, we generally will be entitled to receive advisory, financial planning and/or consulting fees from our clients. While our fees are described in detail in the advisory contract with each client, a summary of our basic fee schedule is set forth below.

Advisory Fees

For our discretionary investment advisory services, we generally will receive a blended asset-based fee that will be comprised of the greater of (i) a minimum fixed annual advisory fee, or (ii) a percentage (typically 0.25% to 1.00% per annum) of the net asset value of each client account as of the applicable date of determination. The applicable advisory fee percentage will be negotiated with each client on a case-by-case basis based on the amount of assets under management and the scope and complexity of services rendered (among other things). Accordingly, our investment advisory fees with respect to any particular advisory client will differ from the basic fee schedule set forth above.

Financial Planning and Consulting Services Fees

Separate and apart from our investment advisory services provided to clients, we additionally or alternatively provide financial planning and/or consulting services (including investment and non-investment related matters, including estate planning, insurance planning, etc.) to new or existing clients.

Fees for financial planning and/or consulting services generally are expected to be on either a fixed or hourly rate basis and will be negotiable on a case-by-case basis, depending upon the level and scope of the service(s) required and the professional(s) rendering the service(s).

Sub-Advised Investment Management Services Fees

The fee schedule for sub-advised services is agreed upon by the unaffiliated registered investment adviser and Clear Rock Advisors. The agreement states the manner and amount that Clear Rock Advisors will be compensated and will generally be based upon the value of the assets being managed.

Payment of Fees

In general, advisory fees generally will be payable quarterly in advance, based upon the asset value of each client account on the last business day of the previous quarter. Clients authorize and direct us to deduct our advisory fees directly from their custodial accounts. In certain cases, clients will be billed and responsible for paying advisory fees directly to us. To the extent any client does not authorize us to deduct our advisory fees directly from their custodial accounts, we generally expect to send invoices to our clients on a quarterly basis. Investment advisory agreements with clients generally do not have termination dates. Instead, investment advisory agreements typically may be terminated by us or the clients at any time as set forth in the applicable agreements. Advisory fees will be prorated (i) with respect to withdrawals, on any date other than as of the end of a calendar quarter and (ii) with respect to contributions, on any date other than as of the beginning of a calendar quarter. In the event of termination of the investment advisory agreement, any unearned fees paid in advance will be refunded to the client (minus any account expenses and reserves for expenses).

Other Fees and Expenses

In addition to asset-based fees, clients generally will be required to bear all investment-related fees and expenses associated with their accounts, including, without limitation, margin and custodial and brokerage fees, sub-advisory fees, and expenses transfer taxes and other fees and expenses relating to transactions in their accounts. Custody and administration fees, to the extent applicable, are charged separately by the custodian or administrator and are in addition to the advisory fees payable to us. See Item 12 below.

For those clients that meet the necessary qualification thresholds and have invested in third-party private offerings, clients will pay the third-party investment adviser to the private offering compensation as described in the private offering documents, in addition to our advisory fees.

Compensation for the Sale of Securities or Other Investment Products

Neither we nor any of our supervised persons expect to accept compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

We do not expect to receive any performance-based compensation with respect to client accounts.

Item 7: Types of Clients

Types of Clients

We will provide investment advisory, financial planning, and consulting services to various types of clients, including individuals, high net-worth individuals, business entities, family offices, trusts, unaffiliated registered investment advisers, and estates. We offer our advisory services to other types of clients, such as pension and profit sharing plans.

Account Requirements

Among other things, clients generally will be required to sign investment management agreements (and/or other contractual arrangements) that, among other things, set forth the nature and scope of our investment management authority, services and the investment objectives, guidelines and restrictions applicable to the management of client accounts.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

We generally will seek to construct the optimal portfolio and generate superior risk adjusted returns for each of our clients through conservative and defensive allocation strategies that employ a strategic blend of asset classes and employ both active and passive management. As such, we generally will allocate client assets among various equity securities, debt and fixed income securities, mutual funds, private investment funds, independent managers, and/or exchange traded funds, on a discretionary basis in accordance with each client's designated investment objective(s) and restrictions. We expect to use alternative investment strategies that add correlation benefits to a portfolio of traditional equity and fixed income strategies and niche opportunistic strategies within both traditional and non-traditional asset classes to compliment core holdings.

Our open architecture approach will enable us to provide our clients objective advice and selectively research, recommend and terminate managers and strategies based purely on their fundamental merits. Outside managers will be selected employing a due diligence process. Factors assessed will include investment philosophy, investment process, quality of investment team and company management, and history of performance relative to a variety of market cycles. Outside managers will vary and include portfolios that are based on fundamental bottom up security analysis or include portfolios that are designed to closely track a particular benchmark. Managers selected, regardless of asset class, will have a track record of generating strong performance relative to the risk they assume. In addition to risk adjusted expected returns for each individual outside manager selected, blended portfolios with multiple outside managers must also fit well together providing risk reducing correlation benefits in an allocation that best meets the client's return objectives and tolerance for risk.

We will take an active and varied approach in identifying best of class specialized asset managers, including third party research, existing manager relationships, database screening, networking with other family offices and investment advisors, clients, and prospective clients. We will actively meet with managers (in person or via phone conference) on a regular basis to stay abreast of their strategies and activity related to client portfolios.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, we will provide investment advisory services to each of our clients in accordance with the investment strategies, objectives and guidelines that are applicable thereto.

Certain Risk Factors

There can be no assurance that clients will achieve their investment objectives or that investments will be successful. Our investment strategies will involve a substantial degree of risk, including risk of complete loss. Nothing in this brochure is intended to imply, and no one is or will be authorized to represent, that our investment strategies are low risk or risk free. Our investment strategies generally will only be appropriate for sophisticated persons who fully understand and are capable of bearing the risks of investment. The various risks outlined below are not the only risks associated with our investment strategies and processes and will not necessarily apply to each client.

General Economic and Market Conditions. The success of our investment strategies and recommendations are affected by general economic and market conditions, such as changes in interest rates, availability of credit, competition, industry conditions, inflation rates, economic uncertainty, changes in laws (including laws relating to taxation of client investments), trade barriers, unemployment rates, release of economic data, currency exchange controls and national and international political circumstances (including wars, terrorist acts, natural disasters, or security operations). These factors will affect the level and volatility of securities prices and the liquidity of client investments. Volatility and/or illiquidity could impair a client's profitability or result in losses. Clients could incur material losses even if we react quickly to difficult market conditions, and there can be no assurance that clients will not suffer material losses and other adverse effects from broad and rapid changes in economic and market conditions in the future. Clients should realize that markets for the financial instruments in which we seek to invest on behalf of our clients can correlate strongly with each other at times or in ways that are difficult for us to predict. Even a well-analyzed approach will not protect clients from significant losses under certain market conditions.

Potential for Fraud. In spite of our desire to invest client assets in reputable and trustworthy companies, there is a risk that we invest client assets in issuers that engage in fraud. To the extent that we invest client assets in a company that engages in fraud, a client could lose all or a substantial portion of its investment in such company and it could have a material adverse effect on the client's financial condition and results of operations.

Terrorist Attacks, War and Natural Disasters. Terrorist activities, anti-terrorist efforts, armed conflicts involving the United States or its interests abroad and natural disasters may adversely affect the United States, its financial markets and global economies and markets and could prevent us from meeting our respective investment objectives and other obligations. The potential for future terrorist attacks, the national and international response to terrorist attacks, acts of war or hostility and recent natural disasters have created many economic and political uncertainties, which adversely affect the United States and world financial markets and our clients for the short or long-term in ways that cannot presently be predicted.

Investment and Trading Risks Generally. All investments risk the loss of capital. No guarantee or representation is or can be made that our investment strategies will be successful. Our investment strategies involve, without limitation, risks associated with equity investments, limited diversification, short-selling, leverage, equity risks, interest rates, volatility, security borrowing risks in short sales, credit deterioration or default risks, systems risks and other risks inherent in our investment activities. Certain of our investment techniques, in certain circumstances, substantially increase the impact of adverse market movements to which clients will be subject.

In addition, client investments will be materially affected by conditions in the financial markets and overall economic conditions occurring globally and in particular countries or markets where we invest client assets.

Our methods of minimizing such risks may not accurately predict future risk exposures. Risk management techniques are based in part on the observation of historical market behavior, which may not predict market divergences that are larger than historical indicators. Also, information used to manage risks may not be accurate, complete, or current, and such information may be misinterpreted.

Equity Risks. We invest client assets in equity and equity-linked securities. The market price of securities owned by our clients will go up or down, sometimes rapidly or unpredictably. Equity securities in a client's portfolio will decline in value due to factors affecting equity securities markets generally or particular industries represented in those markets. The values of equity securities will decline due to general market conditions which are not specifically related to a particular company, such as real or perceived adverse economic conditions, changes in the general outlook for corporate earnings, changes in interest or currency rates or adverse investor sentiment generally. They will also decline due to factors which affect a particular industry or industries, such as labor shortages or increased production costs and competitive conditions within an industry. Other risks of investing globally in equity securities include changes in currency exchange rates, exchange control regulations, expropriation of assets or nationalization, imposition of withholding taxes on dividend or interest payments, and difficulty in obtaining and enforcing judgments against non-U.S. entities. In addition, securities which we believe are fundamentally undervalued or incorrectly valued may not ultimately be valued in the capital markets at prices and/or within the time frame we anticipate. As a result, a client may lose all or substantially all of its investment in any particular instance.

Distressed Securities. We will invest in distressed securities. Direct investments in distressed securities generally involve acquiring securities of companies that are experiencing significant financial difficulties and of companies that are, or appear likely to become, bankrupt or involved in a debt restructuring or other major capital transaction. Consequently, there is a high degree of risk associated with these investments because such companies may never recover, and the value of such investments will be lost.

Small and Mid-Capitalization Companies. We will invest in the securities of small and mid-capitalization companies, as well as securities traded only in the over-the-counter markets. Although investments in these companies have the potential to produce significant returns, such investments generally involve a higher degree of risk than investments in larger companies due to the issuer's lack of financial resources, management experience, product diversification and competitive strength. These and other factors will from time to time, result in operating and financial setbacks that will have a material adverse effect on a particular investment, which will in turn adversely affect the assets of our clients.

Short Selling. Client accounts will include short positions. In a short sale, the seller sells a security that it does not own. Because the seller remains liable to return the underlying security that it borrowed, the seller must purchase the security prior to the date on which delivery is required. As a result, we will engage in short sales only where we believe the value of the security will decline between the date of the sale and the date our client is required to return the borrowed security. The making of short sales will expose our clients to the risk of liability for the market value of the security that is sold, which will be an unlimited risk due to the lack of an upper limit on the price to which a security may rise. In addition, there can be no assurance that securities necessary to cover a short position will be available for purchase or that securities will be available to be borrowed at reasonable costs. If a request for return of borrowed securities occurs at a time when other short sellers of the security are receiving similar requests, a "short squeeze" can occur, and our client will be compelled to replace borrowed securities previously sold short with purchases on the open market at the most disadvantageous time, possibly at prices significantly in excess of the proceeds received in originally selling the securities short.

Highly Volatile Markets. The prices of financial instruments in which clients will invest can be volatile. Price movements of the financial instruments in which client assets will be invested are influenced by, among other things, interest rates, changing supply and demand relationships, trade, fiscal, monetary and exchange control programs and policies of governments and national and international political and economic events and policies. Clients are subject to the risk of failure of any of the exchanges on which their positions trade or of their clearinghouses. In addition, governments from time to time intervene in certain markets, directly and by regulation, particularly in currencies, futures, and options. Such intervention is often intended to directly influence prices and may, together with other factors, cause some or all of these markets to move rapidly in the same direction. The effect of such intervention is often heightened by a group of governments acting in concert.

Interest-Rate Risk. The value of the fixed-rate securities in which we will invest will generally have an inverse relationship with interest rates. Accordingly, if interest rates rise, the value of such securities will generally decline, which will in turn adversely affect the profitability of our clients.

Illiquid Investments. Some investments held by our clients will not be able to be sold except pursuant to a registration statement filed under the Securities Act or in accordance with Rule 144 or another exemption under the Securities Act. Furthermore, because of the speculative and non-public nature of some investments, we will, from time to time, sell or otherwise dispose of investments that later prove to be more valuable than anticipated at the time of such disposition. Any premature sales or dispositions will prevent our clients from realizing as great an overall return on investment as may have been realized if such sales or dispositions had been made at a later date, which will adversely affect investment results of the investors.

Certain securities will be difficult or impossible to sell at the time and price that we desire. We will have to lower the price, sell other securities instead or forego an investment opportunity, any of which could have a negative effect on the profitability of our clients.

Derivatives. We will invest in derivative instruments, including (among others) convertible bonds, convertible preferred stock, options (including speculative positions such as buying and writing call options and put options on either a covered or an uncovered basis), futures, forward contracts, repurchase agreements, reverse repurchase agreements and many different types of swaps. In many cases, derivatives provide the economic equivalent of leverage by magnifying the potential gain or loss from an investment in much the same way that incurring indebtedness would. Many derivatives provide exposure to potential gain or loss from a change in the market price of a financial instrument (or a basket or index) or other event or circumstance in a notional amount that greatly exceeds the amount of cash or assets required to establish or maintain the derivative contract. Accordingly, relatively small price movements in the underlying financial instruments or other events or circumstances will result in immediate losses. In some cases, exposure under a derivative contract is limited to the amount invested. In other cases, the derivative contract will create an open-ended obligation. Many derivatives, particularly those negotiated over-the-counter, are substantially illiquid or could become illiquid under certain market conditions. As a result, it may be difficult or impossible to determine the fair value of our interest in such contracts. Many derivative contracts involve exposure to the credit risk of the counterparty, because we acquire no direct interest in the underlying financial instrument, but instead depend on the counterparty's ability to perform under the contract. Further, if and when we take economic exposure through a derivative, we generally will not have any voting rights and may not be able to pursue legal remedies that would be available if we invested client assets directly in the underlying financial instrument.

Leverage Risks. In certain circumstances, we will use leverage our investment programs and borrow funds from brokers, banks, counterparties and other lenders to finance their trading operations. Such leverage can be achieved through, among other methods, purchases of securities on margin and the use of options, futures, forward contracts, repurchase and reverse repurchase agreements, swaps, and securities lending transactions. The use of leverage generally involves a high degree of risk. In order to secure our various financing arrangements, we may grant guaranties and pledge or otherwise transfer to lenders any of our clients' assets, including specific assets, pools of assets or interests in subsidiary entities.

The use of margin, derivatives and short-term borrowings will result in interest and financing costs to clients and create additional risks. If the value of a client's securities or derivatives positions falls below the margin or collateral levels required by a prime broker or other counterparty, additional margin or collateral deposits would be required. The failure to satisfy a margin or collateral call, or the occurrence of other material defaults under margin or other financing agreements, may trigger cross-defaults under such client's agreements with other brokers, lenders, clearing firms or counterparties, multiplying the adverse impact to the client. In addition, because the use of leverage will allow us to control positions worth significantly more than our clients' investments in those positions, the amount that our clients may lose in the event of adverse price movements will be high in relation to the amount of their investments.

In the event of a sudden drop in the value of our clients' assets, we might not be able to liquidate assets quickly enough to satisfy its margin or collateral requirements or other contractual obligations. In that event, our clients may become subject to claims of financial intermediaries that extended margin loans or other types of credit. Such claims could exceed the value of such assets of our clients. The banks, dealers and other counterparties that provide financing to our clients can apply essentially discretionary margin, haircut, financing, and collateral valuation policies. Changes by banks, dealers, and other counterparties in any of the foregoing may result in large margin or collateral calls, loss of financing and forced liquidations of positions at disadvantageous prices. There can be no assurance that we will be able to secure or maintain adequate financing, without which we and our clients may not continue to be viable.

Limited Diversification and Risk Management Failures. Though we attempt to diversify our clients' position, sector, and geographic exposures through use of certain position limits, at any given time, our clients' portfolios could not be diversified to any material extent, and, as a result, our clients could experience significant losses if general economic conditions, and, in particular, those relevant to the issuers whose securities are owned by our clients, decline. In addition, client accounts could become significantly concentrated in a limited number of issuers, types of financial instruments, industries, strategies, countries, or geographic regions, and any such concentration of risk may increase losses suffered by such clients. This limited diversity could expose clients to losses disproportionate to market movements in general. Other advisers pursue similar strategies, which creates the risk that many advisers may be forced to liquidate positions at the same time, reducing liquidity, increasing volatility, and exacerbating losses. Although we attempt to identify, monitor, and manage significant risks, these efforts do not take all risks into account and there can be no assurance that these efforts will be effective. Many risk management techniques are based on observed historical market behavior, but future market behavior may be entirely different. Any inadequacy or failure in our risk management efforts could result in material losses for clients.

Competition. The markets in which we expect to participate are extremely competitive. There can be no assurance that we will be able to identify or successfully pursue attractive investment opportunities in this environment. Clients should expect that their investments will involve substantially more company specific and market risk and associated volatility in the future than in the past. We compete with many firms, some of which may have substantially greater financial resources, more favorable financing arrangements, larger research staffs and more securities traders than are available to us.

Default and Credit Risks. We will invest client assets in debt obligations of both government and corporate issuers. These financial instruments involve the risk that the obligor either cannot or will not fulfill its obligations under the terms of the financial instrument. We and/or our clients assume credit risk to our brokers, custodians, and other counterparties in connection with brokerage arrangements, derivatives, and other contractual relationships. In evaluating credit risk, we often are dependent upon information provided by the obligor, which may be materially inaccurate or fraudulent. Any actual default, or any circumstance that increases the possibility of such a default, could have a material adverse effect on clients.

Relative Value and Directional Investments. The success of clients depends on our ability to accurately predict future price movements or the convergence of market prices toward the theoretical values expected by us. Any such attempt to predict future price movements is inherently risky and inaccurate. Often, price movements will be determined by unanticipated factors, and our analysis of known factors may prove incorrect, in each case potentially leading to substantial losses to clients.

Trading Decisions. Our trading decisions will be based on fundamental, technical, and other analysis. Any factor that would lessen the prospect of major trends occurring in the future (such as increased governmental control of, or participation in, the financial markets) may reduce the prospect that a particular trading method or strategy will be profitable in the future. In the past, there have been periods without discernible trends and, presumably, such periods will continue to occur in the future. Moreover, any factor that would make it more difficult to execute trades at desired prices in accordance with the signals of the trading method or strategy (such as a significant lessening of liquidity in a particular market) would also be detrimental to profitability. Further, many advisers' trading methods utilize similar analyses in making trading decisions. Therefore, bunching of buy and sell orders can occur, which makes it more difficult for a position to be taken or liquidated. No assurance can be given that our strategies will be successful under all or any market conditions.

"Widening" Risk. For reasons not necessarily attributable to any of the risks set forth herein (for example, supply/demand imbalances or other market forces), the prices of the securities in which clients invest may decline substantially. In particular, purchasing assets at what will appear to be "undervalued" levels is no guarantee that these assets will not be trading at even more "undervalued" levels at a time of valuation or at the time of sale. It will not be possible to predict, or to hedge against, such "spread widening" risk.

Multiple Levels of Expense. We will impose management/advisory fees and other administrative fees and expenses. In addition, many outside managers will also impose performance-based fees or allocations on realized and unrealized appreciation in the value of client assets. If a client (other than an individual retirement account) invests through an outside manager, it will be required to pay to the outside manager, in addition to the advisory fees otherwise applicable to the account, the management fees and carried interest distributions charged by the outside manager. This results in greater expense and less return on investment than if such fees and expenses were not charged. In addition, performance-based allocations or fees could give an outside manager an incentive to make investment decisions that are more risky or speculative than they might otherwise have made without such arrangements. The multiple levels of fees and expenses will reduce overall profitability.

THE FOREGOING RISK FACTORS DO NOT PURPORT TO BE A COMPLETE DESCRIPTION OF ALL OF THE RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH OUR INVESTMENT PROGRAM. CLIENTS SHOULD READ THIS BROCHURE AND ANY OTHER APPLICABLE ACCOUNT DOCUMENTS IN THEIR ENTIRETY BEFORE MAKING ANY INVESTMENT DECISIONS.

Item 9: Disciplinary Information

Not applicable

Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Relationship with a Firm Regulated by FINRA or the CFTC

Our principals and employees do not have registrations with entities regulated by FINRA or the CFTC.

Registration Relationships Material to this Advisory Business and Possible Conflicts of Interests

Our principals and employees do not have relationships with other entities material to this advisory business.

Selection of Other Investment Advisers

On occasion, for those clients that meet the necessary qualification thresholds, we will recommend investment in certain third-party private offerings that are managed by third-party investment advisers that are appropriately registered. The firm does not pay a referral fee for doing this.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

We will adopt and implement a code of ethics, which will set forth standards of business conduct for our employees and principals. Our code of ethics will primarily be designed to educate employees about our philosophy regarding ethics and professionalism, emphasize our fiduciary duties to clients, encourage employees to comply with applicable laws, prevent the misuse of material non-public information, restrict the circulation of rumors and other forms of market abuse and address conflicts of interest that arise from personal trading by employees. Among other things, we will impose restrictions on all employees and principals relating to the purchase or sale of certain securities for their own accounts and the accounts of certain affiliated persons. Our code of ethics will require quarterly reporting of all personal securities transactions in covered securities and annual reports disclosing personal holdings of covered securities. Such reports will be reviewed by appropriate supervisory personnel. We will also maintain certain policies and procedures designed to prevent employees and principals from misusing material non-public information or trading the same security ahead of clients. We will furnish a copy of our code of ethics to our clients upon request.

Personal Trading

Subject to certain restrictions and requirements, our supervised persons generally will be permitted to buy and/or sell securities for their own personal accounts. Allowing supervised persons to purchase these securities could motivate those employees or principals to engage in “front-running,” which is the practice of attempting to benefit from the increase in price resulting from recommendations to clients. To prevent this practice, we will closely monitor the investments made by our supervised persons.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

Selecting Brokerage Firms

In general, we will have the authority to select the brokers and other counterparties to be used for client transactions and to negotiate commission rates and other monies paid by clients (subject to the terms and limitations set forth in the applicable investment management agreements and/or account documents). We will select broker-dealers on the basis of obtaining the best overall terms available, which we will evaluate based on a variety of factors, including, among other things: financial stability of the broker; the broker’s “commission” rates or spread; the broker’s inventory and availability of the security in question; research, custodial and other services provided by such brokers; websites and other related services; the size and type of the transaction; quality of execution; confidentiality; the operational facilities of the brokers involved (including back office efficiency); and the ability to handle a block order for securities and distribution capabilities. We could pay a commission in excess of that which another broker might have charged for effecting the same transactions, in recognition of the value of the brokerage or research services provided by the broker. Because commission rates in the United States as well as other jurisdictions are negotiable, selecting brokers on the basis of considerations which are not limited to applicable commission rates could at times result in higher transaction costs than would otherwise be obtainable.

Charles Schwab & Co., Inc.

We generally recommend that our clients use Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (“Schwab”), a registered broker-dealer, as their qualified custodian. We are independently owned and operated and are not affiliated with Schwab. Schwab generally will hold client assets in a brokerage account and buy and sell securities in such client’s account when we instruct them to. While we recommend that our clients use Schwab as their qualified custodian and broker, each client is ultimately responsible for deciding whether to engage Schwab, and each client will open an account with Schwab by entering into account documentation directly with Schwab. We will not open accounts at Schwab on behalf of our clients, but we will assist our clients in doing so. Not all advisers recommend that their clients use a particular broker-dealer or other custodian. Even though a client’s account is maintained at Schwab, we generally can still use other brokers to execute trades for such client’s account as described in this brochure.

Client Brokerage and Custody Costs

For our clients’ accounts that Schwab maintains, Schwab generally does not charge clients separately for custody services but is compensated by charging clients commissions or other fees on trades that it executes or that settle into clients’ Schwab accounts. For some accounts, Schwab will charge clients a percentage of the dollar amount of assets in the account in lieu of commissions. In addition to commissions and asset-based fees, Schwab generally charges clients a flat dollar amount as a “prime broker” or “trade away” fee for each trade that we have executed by a different broker-dealer but where the securities bought or the funds from the securities sold are deposited (settled) into clients’ Schwab accounts. These fees are in addition to the commissions or other compensation clients pay the executing broker-dealer. Because of this, in order to minimize clients’ trading costs, we have Schwab execute most trades for clients’ accounts. We have determined that having Schwab execute most trades is consistent with our duty to seek “best execution” of clients’ trades. Best execution means the most favorable terms for a transaction based on all relevant factors, including those listed above. See “Selecting Brokerage Firms” above.

Products and Services Available to us from Schwab

Schwab Advisor Services™ (formerly called Schwab Institutional®) is Schwab’s business serving independent investment advisory firms like us. They provide us and our clients with access to its institutional brokerage services (trading, custody, reporting, and related services), many of which are not typically available to Schwab retail customers. Schwab also makes available various support services. Some of those services help us manage or, administer our clients’ accounts, while others help us manage and grow our business. Schwab’s support services are generally available on an unsolicited basis (we do not have to request them) and at no charge to us. Following is a more detailed description of Schwab’s support services:

Services that benefit our clients. Schwab’s institutional brokerage services include access to a broad range of investment products, execution of securities transactions, and custody of client assets. The investment products available through Schwab include some to which we might not otherwise have access or that would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment by our clients. Schwab’s services described in this paragraph generally benefit our clients and their accounts.

Services that will not directly benefit our clients. Schwab also makes available to us other products and services that benefit us but will not directly benefit clients or their accounts. These products and services assist us in managing and administering our clients’ accounts. They include investment research, both Schwab’s own and that of third parties. We will use this research to service all or a substantial number of our clients’ accounts, including accounts not maintained at Schwab. In addition to investment research, Schwab also makes available software and other technology that:

- Provide access to client account data (such as duplicate trade confirmations and account statements);

- Facilitate trade execution and allocate aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts;
- Provide pricing and other market data;
- Facilitate payment of our fees from our clients' accounts; and
- Assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping, and client reporting.

Services that generally benefit only us. Schwab also offers other services intended to help us manage and further develop our business enterprise. These services include:

- Educational conferences and events;
- Consulting on technology, compliance, legal, and business needs;
- Publications and conferences on practice management and business succession; and
- Access to employee benefits providers, human capital consultants, and insurance providers.

Schwab will provide some of these services itself. In other cases, it will arrange for third-party vendors to provide the services to us. Schwab will also discount or waive its fees for some of these services or pay all or a part of a third party's fees. Schwab will also provide us with other benefits, such as occasional business entertainment of our personnel.

Our Interest in Schwab's Services

The availability of these services from Schwab benefits us because we do not have to produce or purchase them. We do not have to pay for Schwab's services. These services are not contingent upon us committing any specific amount of business to Schwab in trading commissions or assets in custody. We have an incentive to recommend that clients maintain clients' account with Schwab, based on our interest in receiving Schwab's services that benefit our business rather than based on clients' interest in receiving the best value in custody services and the most favorable execution of clients' transactions. This is a conflict of interest. We believe, however, that our selection of Schwab as custodian and broker is in the best interests of our clients. Our selection is primarily supported by the scope, quality, and price of Schwab's services and not Schwab's services that benefit only us. See "Selecting Brokerage Firms" above.

Best Execution

In placing orders for the purchase and sale of securities, we will seek best net execution, which includes both commissions and execution prices. Orders will be placed with brokers or dealers which we believe to be responsible and provide effective execution of client orders under conditions most favorable to client accounts.

Soft Dollar Practices

We will seek to obtain the lowest possible price for client transactions, and we do not intend to use soft dollars generated by client accounts to obtain products and services. Nevertheless, we will receive research from brokers who execute portfolio transactions for our clients. This research generally will be used to service all client accounts (to the extent such research is applicable to our clients). We will not formally commit to invest any particular level of commissions to brokers who provide research services. Research from brokers through which portfolio transactions for us are executed will include research reports on particular industries and companies, economic surveys and analyses, recommendations as to specific securities, online quotations, news and research services, access to an electronic communication network for order entry and account information, participation in broker-dealer sponsored research and capital introduction conferences and other services providing lawful and appropriate assistance to us in the performance of investment decision-making responsibilities on behalf of clients. We will benefit by not having to produce or pay for research, and receipt of such research or other products or services will create an incentive for us to select or direct more business to particular brokers. We understand that the benefits received through our relationship with broker-dealers generally do not depend upon the amount of transactions directed to, or the amount of assets custodied by, the broker-dealers. We expect that all research reports received in connection with client-related matters will be within the limitations set forth in Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.

Brokerage for Client Referrals

We do not receive client referrals from brokers.

Directed Brokerage

We do not permit our clients to direct the brokers to be used in executing transactions for their accounts.

Aggregation of Client Trades

We will aggregate or “bunch” trade orders for multiple clients from time to time when it would be in the clients’ best interests to do so. Aggregated orders will be allocated among applicable clients on a fair and equitable basis under the circumstances, but generally pro rata per applicable client account.

Allocation of Investment Opportunities

We will generally allocate investment opportunities among clients in a manner we believe to be fair and equitable under the circumstances. If we have determined to invest in the same direction in the same investment at the same time for more than one of our clients, we will generally place orders for all such accounts simultaneously. If all such orders are not filled at the same price, we will, to the extent possible, allocate the trades such that the order for each client is filled at the average price. Similarly, if an order on behalf of more than one client cannot be fully executed under prevailing market conditions, we will allocate the trades among different clients on a pro rata basis based on contributed capital.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

Reviews of Accounts

Our principals will conduct reviews of client accounts and their investments on at least a quarterly basis. Each client account will be assigned to a specific employee or principal, who will be responsible for conducting such periodic reviews and monitoring adherence to the specific guidelines for such client. Reviews will be performed by the responsible employee or principal on asset allocations and performance on a regular basis, in order to maintain the consistency with such client’s investment guidelines.

Additional Reviews

While we will generally conduct reviews of client accounts and their investments on at least a quarterly basis, we will conduct additional or more frequent reviews under certain circumstances, including changes in market or economic conditions or changes in a client’s investment objectives or financial situation.

Reports

We generally will provide reports and/or other information to our clients upon request. On at least a quarterly basis, we generally provide each advisory client with (a) a report of the account’s assets and liabilities, (b) an accounting of all brokerage commissions and other expenses incurred on behalf of the account, and (c) a report on the account’s performance. We also from time to time will provide such other information and reports relating to client accounts as clients may reasonably request. Generally, all such reports are written. Clients are urged to compare any reports they receive from us with the statements provided by their custodians.

Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Third Party Compensation

We receive an economic benefit from Schwab in the form of the support products and services it makes available to us and other independent investment advisors whose clients maintain their accounts at Schwab. These products and services, how they benefit us, and the related conflicts of interest are described in Item 12. The availability to us of Schwab's products and services is not based on us giving particular investment advice, such as buying particular securities for our clients. Except as otherwise described herein and in Item 12, we do not expect to receive any economic benefit from any non-advisory client for providing investment advice or other advisory services to our clients. See Item 12 above.

Referrals

The Advisor engages independent solicitors to provide client referrals. If a client is referred to us by a solicitor, this practice is disclosed to the client in writing by the solicitor and the Advisor pays the solicitor out of its own funds—specifically, the Advisor generally pays the solicitor a portion of the advisory fees earned for managing the capital of the client or investor that was referred. The use of solicitors is strictly regulated under applicable federal and state law. The Advisor's policy is to fully comply with the requirements of Rule 206(4)-3, under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended, and similar state rules, as applicable.

The Advisor receives client referrals from solicitors that are independent of and unaffiliated with the Advisor and there is no employee relationship between them. These solicitors do not supervise the Advisor and have no responsibility for the Advisor's management of client portfolios or the Advisor's other advice or services. The Advisor pays each solicitor an on-going fee for each successful client referral. This fee is usually a percentage of the advisory fee that the client pays to the Advisor ("Solicitation Fee"). The Advisor will not charge clients referred through solicitors any fees or costs higher than its standard fee schedule offered to its clients.

Additionally, we offer compensation to our employees for referrals.

Item 15: Custody

We are deemed to have, custody of a client's cash and securities to the extent that we have the authority to deduct advisory fees directly from clients' accounts. We do not intend to have physical possession of the cash or securities in client accounts at any time. In general, all cash and securities owned by clients will be held by one or more qualified custodians that are appointed by such clients pursuant to separate custody or other agreements. We generally recommend that clients utilize the custodial, brokerage, clearing and other services of Charles Schwab. Clients receive account statements, at least quarterly, directly from Charles Schwab (and/or other applicable custodians) and should carefully review those statements. We urge clients to compare the account statements they receive from their qualified custodian(s) with any reports that they receive from us.

If we have, or are deemed to have, custody of client cash and securities on a basis other than the deduction of our fees, such cash and securities will (to the extent required by Rule 206(4)-2 under the Advisers Act) be verified by a surprise examination at least once each calendar year by a PCAOB-registered independent public accountant.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

Discretionary Authority

Generally, we will have discretionary power and authority over the types of financial instruments to be bought or sold, as well as the amount to be bought or sold on behalf of our clients (subject to any restrictions and limitations set forth in the account documents of our clients). We will also have the authority to determine the broker-dealer or other counterparty to be used for transactions and the negotiation of commission rates and other consideration to be paid by clients.

On occasion, we may recommend an investment product that will require a client signature for purchase. For example, for those clients that meet the necessary qualification thresholds, we have recommended investment in certain third-party private offerings.

Limited Power of Attorney

Each client will provide us with a limited power of attorney to enable us to conduct authorized trading on its behalf.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities

We have the power and authority to vote and execute all proxies with respect to securities held in client accounts in accordance with proxy voting procedures and guidelines. Clients shall forward, and shall instruct custodian to forward, all proxy materials and related shareholder communications to us upon receipt. We will not be liable or responsible to client with respect to the voting of proxies or other corporate actions if the proxy materials and related shareholder communications are not received in a timely manner. We will have no obligation to furnish clients with any proxies, notices of shareholders' meetings, and other proxy-related literature customarily mailed to shareholders. A copy of our proxy voting policy and procedures, together with information on how we voted client's proxies, is available upon request.

Item 18: Financial Information

We do not have any financial commitment that impairs our ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to our clients, nor have we been the subject of any bankruptcy proceeding.

Pursuant to the guidance provided by our lender, the Small Business Administration, and the Department of Treasury, the firm applied for and received a Paycheck Protection Program loan. We anticipate that this loan will be repaid or forgiven, again, in accordance with the guidance provided by our lender, the Small Business Administration and the Department of Treasury.

Additional information about Royce W. Medlin is available on the SEC's website at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov.

Item 2: Educational Background and Experience

Mr. Medlin was born in 1966. He received a Master of Business Administration from Texas Christian University and undergraduate degree from Texas Tech University. Mr. Medlin is a co-founder of Clear Rock Advisors, LLC and serves as Chief Investment Officer. His responsibilities include investment strategy, global asset allocation, manager due diligence, and portfolio construction. Mr. Medlin has extensive experience managing equities, fixed income and alternative investment portfolios and chairs the investment committee at the firm. Prior to founding Clear Rock Advisors, Mr. Medlin served as Director, Capital Advisory Group at Lazard Asset Management, a global institutional asset management company headquartered in New York managing $200 billion in assets. While at Lazard, he advised institutional clients including Family Office, Multi Family Office, Endowments & Foundations and Regional Investment Consulting firms. Prior, Mr. Medlin served as Partner and Director of Portfolio Management at Smith Group Asset Management. Prior, he was President and Portfolio Manager of Belmont Wealth Management, Senior Vice President and Portfolio Manager at U.S. Trust Company and Portfolio Manager at Team Bank Trust Investments, where he managed equity and fixed income portfolios for wealthy families and institutions.

Mr. Medlin is a Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA). This is a graduate-level investment credential established in 1962 and awarded by CFA Institute — a global association of investment professionals.

To earn the CFA charter, candidates must: 1) pass three sequential, six-hour examinations; 2) have at least four years of qualified professional investment experience; 3) join CFA Institute as members; and 4) commit to abide by, and annually reaffirm, their adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.

High Ethical Standards

The CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct, enforced through an active professional conduct program, require CFA charter holders to:

- Place their clients' interests ahead of their own
- Maintain independence and objectivity
- Act with integrity
- Maintain and improve their professional competence
- Disclose conflicts of interest and legal matters

Global Recognition

Passing the three CFA exams requires extensive study (successful candidates report spending an average of 300 hours of study per level). Earning the CFA charter demonstrates mastery of many of the advanced skills needed for investment analysis and decision making in today's evolving global financial industry.

Additionally, regulatory bodies in 22 countries and territories recognize the CFA charter as a proxy for meeting certain licensing requirements, and more than 125 colleges and universities around the world have incorporated a majority of the CFA Program curriculum into their own finance courses.

Comprehensive and Current Knowledge

The CFA Program curriculum provides a comprehensive framework of knowledge for investment decision making and is firmly grounded in the knowledge and skills used every day in the investment profession. The three levels of the CFA Program test a proficiency with a wide range of fundamental and advanced investment topics, including ethical and professional standards, fixed-income and equity analysis, alternative and derivative investments, economics, financial reporting standards, portfolio management, and wealth planning.

The CFA Program curriculum is updated every year by experts from around the world to ensure that candidates learn the most relevant and practical new tools, ideas, and investment and wealth management skills to reflect the dynamic and complex nature of the profession. To learn more about the CFA charter, visit www.cfainstitute.org.

Mr. Medlin also holds a CAIA Charter. The CAIA Charter is the globally recognized credential for professionals managing, analyzing, distributing, or regulating alternative investments. The CAIA Charter designation is the highest standard of achievement in alternative investment education and provides deep knowledge, demonstrated expertise, and global credibility in alternatives. It is granted upon successful completion of a rigorous and comprehensive two-level exam series, combined with relevant work experience. The Level I exam assesses understanding of various alternative asset classes and knowledge of the tools and techniques used to evaluate the risk-return attributes of each one. The Level II exam assesses application of the knowledge and analytics learned in Level I within a portfolio management context. Both levels include segments on ethics and professional conduct.

Earning the CAIA Charter is the gateway to becoming a member of the CAIA Association, a global network of over 8,000 alternative investing leaders located in 80+ countries, who have demonstrated a deep and thorough understanding of alternative investing.

Additional information about Royce G. Itchner is available on the SEC's website at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov.

Item 2: Educational Background and Experience

Mr. Itschner was born in 1951. He received his Master of Business Administration and Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance and Accounting from Texas A & I University. Mr. Itschner became an investment advisor representative with Clear Rock Advisors, LLC in December of 2019. Prior to arriving at Clear Rock Advisors, LLC, he was an investment advisor representative and certified public accountant (CPA) with Massey, Itschner and Company, P.C., an investment adviser registered with the state of Texas and an accounting firm. He began his career with Massey, Itschner and Company, P.C. in July 1995 and served as its Vice President and Secretary.

Mr. Itschner has earned the following designation(s) and is in good standing with the granting authority:

- Certified Public Accountant (CPA); Texas State Board of Public Accountancy; 1978
- Certified Financial Planner™ (CFP®), Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc.; 1990
- Personal Financial Specialist (PFS); The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants; 1995

Certified Public Accountant (CPA)

In order to become a CPA in the United States, the candidate must sit for and pass the Uniform Certified Public Accountant Examination, which is set by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) and administered by the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy. Eligibility to sit for the Uniform CPA Exam is determined by individual State Boards of Accountancy, and typically, a U.S. bachelor's degree which includes a minimum number of qualifying credit hours in accounting and business administration with an additional one-year study. All CPA candidates must pass the Uniform CPA Examination to qualify for a CPA certificate and license to practice public accounting. CPAs are required to take continuing education courses in order to renew their license. Requirements vary by state. The vast majority of states require 120 hours of CPE every 3 years with a minimum of 20 hours per calendar year. The requirement can be fulfilled through attending live seminars, webcast seminars, or through self-study (textbooks, videos, online courses, all of which require a test to receive credit). As part of the CPE requirement, most states require their CPAs to take an ethics course during every renewal period. Ethics requirements vary by state, and the courses range from 2–8 hours.

Certified Financial Planner™ (CFP®)

The Certified Financial Planner™, CFP® and federally registered CFP (with flame design) marks (collectively, the “CFP® marks”) are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. (“CFP Board”).

The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 71,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- Education – Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board’s studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor’s Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board’s financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;

- Examination – Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one’s ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one’s knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience – Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and
- Ethics – Agree to be bound by CFP Board’s Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals.

Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

- Continuing Education – Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and
- Ethics – Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients.

CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board’s enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

Personal Financial Specialist (PFS)

The PFS designation is awarded by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) to those who have taken additional training and already have a CFP® designation. Every PFS credential holder is a licensed CPA and a member in good standing in the AICPA; has met strict education and eligible business experience requirements, including two (2) years of full time business or teaching experience in personal financial planning and has agreed to the AICPA Code of Professional Conduct.

Item 3: Disciplinary Information

Mr. Itschner has not been involved in any legal or disciplinary events related to past or present investment clients.

Item 4: Other Business Activities

Mr. Itschner will continue to be actively engaged as a CPA with Massey, Itschner and Company, P.C.

Item 5: Additional Compensation

No person who is not a client provides an economic benefit to Mr. Itschner for providing advisory services. See also Item 4: Other Business Activities.

Item 6: Supervision

Clear Rock Advisors, LLC has a continuing responsibility to supervise all persons who act on its behalf in order to prevent violations of applicable securities laws. To fulfill this responsibility, Clear Rock Advisors, LLC has implemented procedures and a system for applying such procedures as part of its compliance manual that are reasonably expected to prevent and detect violations by all supervised persons, including Mr. Itschner.

Item 2: Educational Background and Experience

Mr. Long was born in 1979. He received his Bachelor of Business Administration from the McCombs School of Business at the University of Texas at Austin. Mr. Long serves as a Senior Wealth Strategist at Clear Rock Advisors, providing financial planning and investment management services. Prior to joining Clear Rock Advisors, he served as Director of Wealth Management at Polaris Wealth Advisory Group. Prior to that, he served as Lead Advisor at Raub Brock Capital Management. He also served previously as an Account Executive at Fidelity Investments and as a Senior Associate at Bernstein Private Wealth Management.

Mr. Long has earned the following designation(s) and is in good standing with the granting authority:

- Certified Financial Planner™ (CFP®), Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc.; 2010

Certified Financial Planner™ (CFP®)

The Certified Financial Planner™, CFP® and federally registered CFP (with flame design) marks (collectively, the “CFP® marks”) are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. (“CFP Board”).

The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 71,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- Education – Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board’s studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor’s Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board’s financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
- Examination – Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one’s ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one’s knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience – Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and
- Ethics – Agree to be bound by CFP Board’s Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals.

Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

- Continuing Education – Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and
- Ethics – Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients.

CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

Item 3: Disciplinary Information

Mr. Long has not been involved in any legal or disciplinary events related to past or present investment clients.

Item 4: Other Business Activities
